York. College Street. One of the quiet nooks of this ancient city; its quaint old houses with overhanging stories looking down on the garden and sharing in the peace of the Minster which with its wall of painted glass closes in the picture. St. William's College was founded in 1460 by the Nevilles—George, who later on was Archbishop, and Richard, Earl of Warwick.

Youder the long horizon lies, and there by night and day
The old ships draw to shore again. The young ships sail away;
